Undergraduate Certificate in
UNIVERSAL DESIGN

What is Universal Design?

Universal Design creates products and environments that are as usable as possible by as many people as possible. Principles of Universal Design are utilized to make products, systems, buildings, classrooms, and other environments that are accessible to everyone.

The UK Human Development Institute offers an Undergraduate Certificate in Universal Design. Students of all disciplines can learn about and benefit from Universal Design's broad set of strategies that promote inclusion and participation of all people.

Required Courses

HDI 350: Introduction to Universal Design	HDI 400: Universal Design Practicum	HDI 500: Practicum II: Advanced Techniques	Elective: Elective approved by certificate director

Admission Requirements

- Undergraduate students OR post-baccalaureate students who have completed UK Undergraduate Admission Application
- Eligible to take upper-level electives
- Apply for admission to Certificate Program

To learn more, visit www.hdi.uky.edu/undergraduate-certificate

Contact

Dr. Rachel Womack, PhD, MSW
LEND and Training Director
rachel.womack@uky.edu

UK Human Development Institute